Sign In page:

- The page is pretty easy to use and simple. But, it is not attractive or we can say it has more empty spaces around.
- Login button does not change in anyway while hovering. So, such small interactions can be improvised for a better user experience.
- AUMS is used by many different departments in the university. So mentioning the category of the departments could help the user to verify the sign-in page is for that respective department.

There are currently no announcements at this location.

The AUMS home page has many divisions.

Let us look at the different parts of the page one by one.

- Here, the subject tags are not arranged properly. It is not sorted in any order according to its subject code, which forces the user to remember the order it displays.
- Additionally, the subject code is not displayed fully, which gives a huge headache to the user as every time they have to search for the respective subject they are looking for.

- This is a good initiative by the university. A blissful message is displayed everyday in this panel which provides a user with some divine thoughts.
- Placing it in the home page is a very good decision as none will make efforts to find and read such things.

- But, this panel could be little for presentable to make sure that user does not fails to notice it.
- More than just a text, images can be used to seek the user's attention.

- The calendar placed in the home page helps the user to quickly check the events that are pending for the day.
- The calendar is quite good to navigate around and as a whole it is good.

Home Information Display:

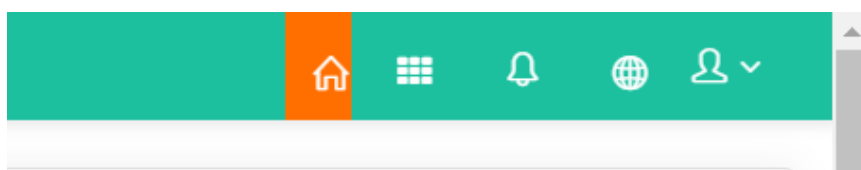

- This sections itself says that it is not yet configured. Then ultimately there is no purpose of keeping it in the home page.
- Such incomplete and more blank spaces will give a bad user experience.

Recent Announcements:

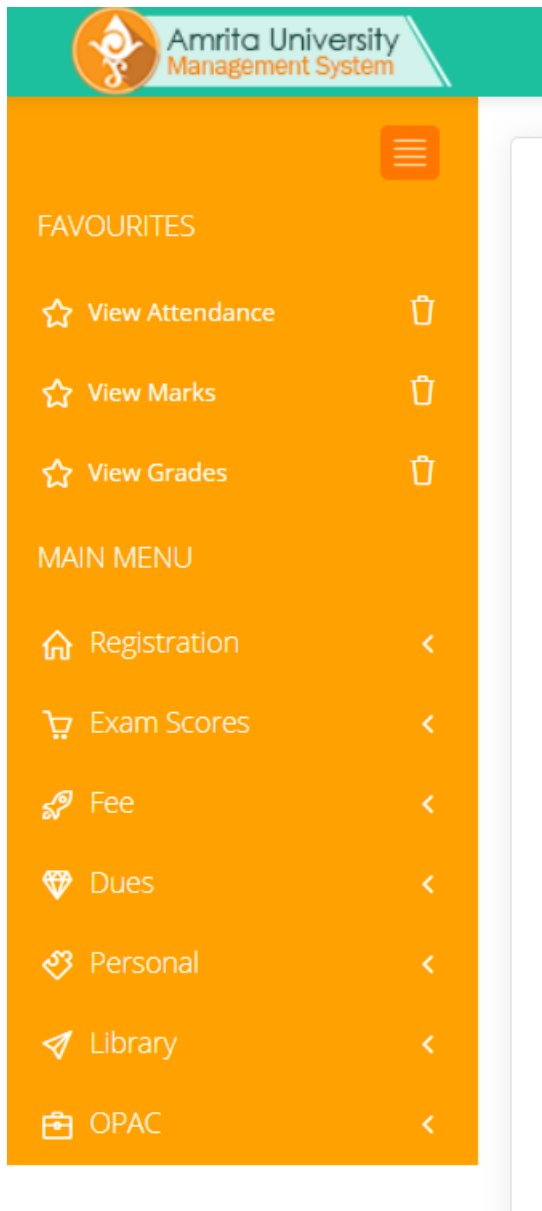

- I personally have hardly seen any announcements in this section. I never understood what this section is used for.
- So, we can conclude that this is an unnecessary usage of spaces.
- Or else, the university can work on providing the required announcements.

Top navbar:

- As you can see the icon is not placed properly (not centered).
- And the hovering is also very minimal in animation, which is a bad design.

Side navbar:

- The options in the navigation bar are not much confusing. It is mentioned with clear and specific names.
- They are well organised and categorised.

- And you can see that, this navbar is placed left to the page considering the more usage of it.
